Sites for homes 'up by $1000 in 1971'

By ROBERT CLARKE
Herald Property Writer

Building blocks in some Melbourne suburbs could cost an extra $1000 within two years.

This rise was forecast today by the estate manager for Consolidated Home Industries Ltd., Mr Graeme Hill.

He said that in the last year the price of blocks rose by about $700, and the spiral was continuing.

Suspect: 'Queer' sex life

LOS ANGELES, Fri., (AP) — The elder of two brothers charged with the murder of a silent-screen star Ramon Novarro was revealed today to have led a "very erratic" sex life, including marrying a woman of 42 when he was 16 years old.

A defence psychiatrist testified at the trial of Paul Ferguson, 23, and Thomas Ferguson, 18, that Paul became involved in homosexual activities with older men when he was nine. The Chicago brothers are being tried in the same courtroom where Sirhan Sirhan was sentenced to death for killing Senator Robert Kennedy and the Novarro case took on a similar aspect as the defence sought to establish the same plea of "diminished mental capacity."

R. Vernon Miller, a psychiatrist, said that 12 drinks of whisky and two cans of beer were given to Paul Ferguson in jail and that he became physically violent and a breakdown test showed a b breakdown of his mental functions.

Wider roads

Mr Hill said that place-meal release of land for housing had established high prices. And the rise in prices could be accelerated by the trend of councils to make roads 5½ ft wider to provide for car parking. He said that another factor was a growing demand for wider frontages to suit houses with double garages. This caused a price rise of about $650. Water supply charges and connection of sewerage to new estates would add at least $875 to the cost of sites soon.

NEW BIKE THEN DEATH

One of his witnesses had stage girl

She realised that she didn't really dig archaeology, that it was only a passing school-girl fancy.

So she decided to become a dancer. At that time Bristol-born Sandra Stephens was a pretty 14-year-old schoolgirl in Sydney.

Today she is gay, glamorous and 21, with the key to a big future in the theatre. Blond, blue-eyed Sandra is one very good reason why "Candoury Tales" is playing to full houses at the Comedy.

When the Stephens family — Mum, Dad, three brothers and a sister — moved to Melbourne, Sandra became friendly with Corbett's first pupils. School, she trained with the Australian Ballet School, then back to the States.

But in the "blue" last year came an offer for a dancing part in "Mame". She had only two days to learn the show.

Sandra breezed through her seven numbers like a veteran. "Candoury Tales" is Sandra's second show. It will not be her last.

She was a good printer at school, likes to sail, swim, play tennis and squash, read and sew. Sandra, 35-23-36, is a salmon, cheese and continental bread addict. She says she has no worries about diet and figure.

Her father, a marketing manager, and her brother are the only men in her life. She hopes to meet a nice "Australian boy" one of these days, but she's in no hurry.

IS INFANT BAPTISM A MAGIC WAND?

Some Church of England, Presbyterian and Methodist theologians question the effectiveness of baptising children.

Dr Barry Marshall, said who are members of the Church of England, who are baptising the children of anybody who asked for it. "This results in the same ceremony being performed on a child who has never been baptised."

Dr Marshall said that the population was Christian. "We adhere to infant baptism. But there is social and superstitious pressure from relatives who want the privilege, if not the responsibility, of being god-parents and a deep-rooted superstition that the baby will die if it is not baptised."

Dear Hazelwood said: "The New Testament is not in itself a magic wand. It is not quite right if it is used as a magic wand to maintain a hold on the majority of people."

Granny turns to pop

LONDON, Fri. — A 78-year-old Decade pop singer has turned to pop. Now I plan to make a pop album — to live from it. Mrs Page, who has now sold her grocery store in Northampton, is now a full-time pop singer. "I have now decided to make a name for myself."
